Class 3'A against women violence

25th November is the international day against violence on women, and, with the help of the art teacher, students made many origami butterflies and a sentence to attach to the door representing their stance to the whole school:

‘Violence against women isn’t only a violation of human rights, its a shame for humanity.’

‘Stupefatto’ Drugs education

Drugs are a very important topic in our present society and our lives, so schools decided to bring middle schoolers to a theatre show to educate them.

The show, ‘Stupefatto’, talks about the story of Enrico Comi, an ex drug addict now clean, that had to go through much before actually healing.

We believe the show was a very important opportunity to educate the young generations about drugs and thier effects on people.
